

I have been using a stone soap on a marble floor and it is getting sticky, should I switch to another cleaner?

Sounds like you are using too much stone soap. Stone soaps, if overused, will build up on the surface of the floor and will become sticky. To remove this stickiness, clean the floor with plain water. It may require several moppings to remove.

You can switch to a neutral cleaner for a while but the stone soap should be ok as long you follow the directions.

TIP Stone soaps are a great cleaners for stone surface. However, you need to carefully follow the directions. Do not use too much. It is best to start with half of the recommended dosage.

Online URL:

<https://surfacecarepros.com/kb/article/i-have-been-using-a-stone-soap-on-a-marble-floor-and-it-is-getting-sticky-should-i-switch-to-another-cleaner-1496.html>